Think big, start small, scale fast

Amplifi and Semarchy's strategic relationship has enabled us to create QuickStart xDM, the UK's leading, instantly available Semarchy xDM service. Hosted on Azure, customers can rapidly scale from experimental 'fail-fast' sandbox environments through agile development data sprints into fully operational production ready solutions.

Define your data strategy and understand which data initiatives and improvements will make a real difference to your business. Our sandbox environment enables you to begin using the platform immediately and, with Amplifi's support, deliver rapid value by finding your Point of First Value (PFV) within weeks. Our defined PFV process means you can work in sprints to scale rapidly – in both volume and complexity – to successfully and quickly execute the data initiatives in your over-arching strategy.

How does QuickStart xDM work?

Amplifi and Semarchy have developed QuickStart xDM to enable businesses to rapidly implement an MDM solution and start solving data challenges quickly. That means you're able to measure the value of your investment within weeks or months, rather than years.

But how does that work?

"Our whole approach is about people, processes and technology, which aligns perfectly to Semarchy's Intelligent Data Hub. Because we understand the use cases and who we need to talk to, we are ready to go with our data sprints. We're adding value before we even turn up- that's a real quick start!"
